Background

The NAREDCO Mahi Initiative is an effort to promote skilling in the Indian real estate industry. The initiative aims to provide industry-specific training and certification to workers and professionals in the real estate sector, in order to enhance their skills and improve the overall quality of the industry.

Under the NAREDCO Mahi Initiative, NAREDCO has partnered with various government and private organizations to offer a range of training programs, workshops, and certification courses to real estate professionals, including architects, engineers, construction workers, and sales and marketing executives.

The training programs offered by the NAREDCO Mahi Initiative cover a wide range of topics, including building construction, project management, real estate marketing, financial management, and legal and regulatory compliance. The courses are designed to provide both theoretical knowledge and practical skills, and are conducted by experienced professionals and trainers from the real estate industry.

In addition to training and certification programs, the NAREDCO Mahi Initiative also provides a platform for real estate professionals to network and collaborate with each other. The initiative hosts regular events, conferences, and seminars, where industry experts and leaders share their insights and experiences with the participants.

The NAREDCO Mahi Initiative is a much-needed effort to improve the quality of the Indian real estate industry, which has traditionally been plagued by issues such as poor construction quality, lack of transparency, and non-compliance with regulatory norms. By promoting skilling and training among real estate professionals, the initiative aims to create a more skilled and responsible workforce, which will ultimately benefit the industry and the society as a whole.
